Dear Parishioners and Friends of Sacred Heart,

Today Jesus asks His disciples a pointed question, "Who do you say that I am?" (Matthew 16:16) Such an inquiry, at first sight, seems like Jesus is facing an "identity crisis," that He is in need of identity clarification or affirmation. With prayerful reflection, however, this question is really meant for the disciples. Jesus asks, after having shown them miraculous feeding of the homeless, rescued Peter from sinking, and taught them how to live with faith-filled integrity (14:13 - 16:12). And He poses that question as they are walking towards Jerusalem, where He will face oppositions, death, and eventual resurrection. In asking His disciples, "Who do you say that I am," Jesus prepares them to clarify their level of commitment to Him by faith, and to live out what Jesus has been teaching them by words and examples. In short, the disciples individually and collectively have to own their faith in following Jesus.

The same question put to Peter and other disciples in years past is also put to each of us today. We face this question, "Who do I say Jesus is?" when we need to choose between living right or wrong. As we mature in years, this question invites us to practice Gospel values on the choices we make. Being baptized or confirmed is only the first step of living faith. Just coasting on our faith virtually amounts to a spiritual coma. Eventually each of us needs to "own" the faith we received from our family and our church. As we respond to "Who do you say that I am?" from Jesus with heart and exemplify our response by self-giving kindness, then we will know Jesus, no longer as an obligation or outsider, but as the living God and a soul mate for our life journey.

This past Thursday the Pastoral Council, including Fr. Mark and Fr. Binh, met to map out ways of responding – together as a parish – to the question of Jesus, "Who do you say that I am?" in forming a direction, the council wants to hear from you. What we do well here? What areas do we need to improve? Please call the parish office, or email your feedbacks to Roberta de Vera (chair) at roberta@sacredheartseattle.com or Fr. Binh at fr.binh@sacredheartseattle.com. Thank you for having already shared yourself at Sacred Heart. Being united in faith, your active roles in furthering God's mission here at your parish and beyond is essential and valued. Meanwhile pray for one another!

Be blessed with a grace-filled week.

Fr. Binh T. Ta, C.Ss.R.
