God bless you!

This very weekend I am in San Antonio, TX, and at St. Gerard Church, my home parish, celebrating their/our 100th Anniversary of the parish. And we here at Sacred Heart will soon celebrate our 125th anniversary! These are quite special events for they give us an opportunity to again remember and thank so many who have come before us, those who have given of their lives, made sacrifices, shared their time and talent, and most especially gave witness to their faith by the works of their daily lives.

"The works we do expose the inner spirit that animates our life." I came across this line in preparation for a homily this past week. And it is so true; and this is why Jesus was so purposefully impatient with the Pharisees who seemed to so often focus on petty things such as tithing, purity laws, seats in synagogues, and being recognized in the market. So what kind of inner spirit do our works expose?

There are several inserts in our bulletin this week: One is on what our postures and gestures at Mass express and the other insert is about World Mission Sunday, which we celebrate next week and which will give us an opportunity to be engaged in missionary activity around the world (we might not be able to physically be there but we can provide for good works happening in the lives of others). Read these inserts carefully and enjoy meaning and pride from your actions.

There was a delightful article, in last Thursday's paper, about several women at Creek Corrections Center who were learning lessons from butterflies in their goal to preserve and boost specific species, the Taylor's Checkerspot, Mardon Skipper, and the Painted Lady butterflies. "It is a wonderful experience and it's very rewarding...very interesting and amazing to help populate life." We enjoy much today because of someone yesterday who cared. The spirit of their lives animates us still!

Speaking of life animation, our Liturgical Ministers will enjoy a day of retreat this October 29th. Keep them in your prayers as they further appreciate the gift they are to all of us. And we extend much gratitude to all the parishioners and volunteers of Sacred Heart who have and continue to form and fund us. Your faith and actions do make a difference!

Have a beautiful week. Enjoy a butterfly moment provided for you by another. Reach out, make a sacrifice, bring a smile to a face and heart by your spirit in action.

Father Mark
